ATHLETIC FIELD IS DEDICATED

Over 1,000 Persons Attend Emmitsburg Celebration; Frederick Mayor Speaks.

A crowd, variously estimated from 1,000 to 2,000, participated in the formal dedication of Emmitsburg's new athletic field, Saturday afternoon.

All the exercises were held at the field which was preceded by a colorful procession around the spacious playground.

Burgess George Naylor, of Emmitsburg, presided at the program, with Mayor Kuller, of Frederick, Alfred Sharpe, president of the Baltimore fire board and Mike Thompson, of Emmitsburg, as the principal speakers. Mr. Sharpe represented Mayor Jackson, of Baltimore, who was unable to attend the exercises because of the press of business affairs.

Mike Thompson originated the establishment of an athletic field as a works project and successfully supervised completion of the playground.

A feature of the afternoon's program was a ball game between the Emmitsburg baseball club and the Baltimore firemen, with the firemen emerging on the long end of a 11-3 score.

Following the ball game and program there was a basket picnic, band concerts and dancing.

Second Body

Fred Frahm (above), serving a ten-year sentence for the murder of his wealthy brother, is shown as he was questioned at Lincoln, Neb., about the map (above) he drew that resulted in the finding of a second body in the slaying case. Frahm asserted that a body identified as that of his brother when he was convicted was "planted" for evidence against him. The second body, found when officers followed directions on the map, has been accepted as that of the slain brother. Fred, who drew the map after being in prison six months, says his brother was killed by a hit-run driver, but was unable to explain a bullet wound. (Associated Press Photo)

INJURED CLERK RESUMES WORK

Louis W. Wagaman, Aide to Commissioners, Recovers From Head Injury.

Louis W. Wagaman, clerk to the Adams county commissioners, resumed his duties today after an absence of five weeks.

Mr. Wagaman was found in an unconscious condition, partially clad, on a cement sidewalk beneath the bathroom window of his home in Square Corners, on the evening of July 6. He was found by his wife and daughter, upon their return from church about 6 p. m.

The commissioners' clerk had a severe head injury and was unable to give any details of how he reached the cement walk and how he was injured. The theory was first advanced that he had fallen out of the bath room window but this was later discounted in view of the fact that he was wearing a clean shirt, over his underwear and that to have fallen from the window he would have had to step into the bath tub and thence climbed to the window sill.

Police said that if he were in the bath tub at the time, and had suffered an attack his body would have slumped to the bath tub and that it would have been impossible for him to have fallen out of the window.

Mr. Wagaman was a patient in the Warner hospital for some time.

This morning, greeted by his court house friends, Mr. Wagaman said that he "felt fine" and apparently has not suffered any serious after effects of the head injury. He has a deep scar over his right eye.

Aerialists and Water Circus Secured for 5-Day Fair

South Mountain Exposition, Sept. 10-14, Offers Free 5-Act Program.

Five acts of free entertainment every afternoon and evening will be one of the highlights of the 1935 South Mountain fair to be held in Arendtsville Union park, September 10, 11, 12, 13 and 14.

The entertainment program, always an attraction at the annual Adams county exposition, will consist of a highly recommended troupe of aerial trapeze artists and a water circus.

The aerialists will execute every known act in the aerial field, including flips, flops, twists, turns, somersaults and others. The act is billed as the "Aerial Queens" and the executive committee of the South Mountain fair association contracted for the troupe after receiving many recommendations of the high quality performances rendered by the "Queens."

Entertainment Is Free

The nature of the water circus is not being divulged, fair officials preferring to keep this feature of the entertainment program a secret until the opening performance.

The entertainment program is presented free as an inducement to Adams county patrons. The large grandstand, constructed last year, affords a comfortable "theatre" from which patrons may enjoy the performances.

It is expected that there will be many more exhibitors this year than in previous years with a wider assortment of merchandise on display, according to space reservations already received by the committee in charge.

The large parking arena has been improved, thus affording ample and better parking facilities for all patrons. The field has been graded in some spots, holes filled in and more electric lights strung for the convenience of customers.

The road leading from "The Narrows" road to the park proper also has been improved.

Battlefield guides were particularly elated and pleased with tourist business in Gettysburg over the week-end.

"Every guide in the square had at least three and some had four trips over the field on Sunday," one guide reported, "while it was reported that guides operating on the outskirts of town, on the main arteries of travel, all had at least three trips each."

Superintendent C. L. Nett, of the Gettysburg National cemetery, reported today that approximately 6,080 persons toured the field on Sunday, one of the best Sundays local guides experienced in a long time.

Traffic into and through Gettysburg was unusually heavy over the week-end, with the peak being reached Sunday afternoon.

An almost steady stream of machines, many from foreign states, rolled around the square and highway traffic was heavy for a wide radius from Gettysburg.

REPLIES TO INVITATION

General H. R. Lee Believes Reunion in 1936 Would Attract Large Crowd.

"It will be my pleasure and duty to extend the cordial invitation extended by you to my comrades at their 45th annual reunion, at Amarillo, Texas, September 3, 6," wrote Lieutenant General Harry Rene Lee, adjutant and chief of staff of the United Confederate Veterans, to Burgess Wilbur J. Stallsmith in reply to the Burgess' personal invitation to the U. C. V. to meet in joint reunion with the G. A. R. here in 1936.

General Lee expressed the opinion, in his letter to Burgess Stallsmith, that a joint reunion in 1936, "perhaps the end of the year," would attract a larger crowd of veterans than in 1938.

General Lee said "Your invitation will be read to the delegates—the outcome sent over the Associated Press wires and by personal letter to you."

Burgess Stallsmith said that he would approve a reunion at any time the veterans agreed upon but explained that he believed 1936 would be too soon to hold the reunion "because the commission will not have the finances or the time in which to prepare for such a big event."

REV. ESLINGER DECRIES ABUSE OF THE SABBATH

Day of Pleasure, Business Rapped by Methodist Pastor.

TEXT SELECTED FROM MARK 2

"The Lord's Day, Our Sabbath, Its Universal and Perpetual Obligation," was the theme of the sermon delivered at the union church service at the Memorial United Brethren church, by the Rev. Edwin L. Eslinger, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church.

The sermon, in part, follows: "This community, like many others, is facing a crisis in reference to the Holy Sabbath. Pennsylvania has had a model Sunday law since 1794. Recently the forces adverse to keeping this day sacred have succeeded in making some changes in this law that unless checked speedily will lead to its ultimate overthrow. And it behooves the friends of the Sabbath to bestir themselves lest this bulwark of our religious civilizations be completely overthrown by the forces of unrighteousness, greed, avarice and worldliness.

"Already, as you know, our legislature has made it possible to legalize some sports on Sunday. And not only has it done this, but also sanctions the sale of intoxicants on Sunday by certain clubs and organizations, and now comes the law requiring a referendum on the opening of the moving picture shows on Sunday when but five per cent of the largest vote for any candidate in the last election signs a petition for such referendum. Instead of our legislature doing, as previous legislatures have done, defend this sacred institution, we are plunged into a contest that arrays the community in opposing camps to defend or destroy the holy day.

"As if a moral law could be submitted to a vote of the people and such vote determine whether a Sunday devoted to rest and worship as decreed by the Almighty could be by vote of the people abrogated and turned into a day devoted to business, pleasure and dissipation.

Cites Commandment

"This subject was discussed from the needs of man from his physical, intellectual, moral, spiritual, social, and religious aspects as well as from the Biblical standpoint. And it was shown that the law of one day's rest in seven had the sanction of the Creator and was a provision for the entire race and not simply for a particular people. Then as one of the commandments it was specifically enjoined upon all peoples as well as on the Jewish people for the moral law is and has always

EXTEND FAIR FOR 2 DAYS

Bendersville Firemen to Continue Celebration Tuesday and Wednesday Evenings.

The firemen's fair at Bendersville will be continued Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, according to an announcement of fair officials made through an advertisement appearing elsewhere in today's paper. Due to the heavy rains Saturday evening the firemen were unable to dispose of any of their goods, except the perishable foods, which were all sold.

At first it was decided to continue the fair tonight and Tuesday nights, but the firemen reconsidered their decision due to a conflict with the previously announced "donkey" baseball game being held in Gettysburg tonight. They settled on Tuesday and Wednesday nights.

An elaborate entertainment program for the two evenings is planned. On Tuesday evening the 60-piece Boiling Springs band, an organization that has earned a wide reputation since it won the state championship, will furnish the music. The Fairfield high school band of 50 instruments has been secured to play Wednesday evening.

Hitler Says Nazis Will Smash Foes If They Try to Fight

Delivers Warning in Speech at Celebration at Rosenheim—Declares No Power Can Attack Germany Oppression of Jews Continues.

Berlin, Aug. 12 (AP)—Reichsführer Adolf Hitler warned all opponents of national socialism Sunday night that nazis will "smash them utterly."

He addressed a cheering crowd at Rosenheim, where he motored to attend celebrations of the fifteenth anniversary of the local nazis organization.

Elsewhere in the Reich Jews were turned away from summer resorts. At Munich a united group of neighboring storm trooper organizations paraded the streets in 500 trucks, flaunting streamers denouncing Jews and referring to "Catholic devils" (foreign exchange) smugglers.

Welcomed by Bavarian Minister The Reichsführer was welcomed by Adolf Wagner, Bavarian minister of the interior. He was warmly applauded as he began his address.

"If those who are against us want a fight they can have it," he warned. "We never have capitulated in the past and certainly will not now."

"If the hammer blows of hate should strike us they will only make us still stronger. I am convinced no power on earth can attack us any more."

Goes on Diet to Prepare For "Human Icicle" Test

Stephen Simkhovitch, Agreeing To Be Frozen Solid for Revivification Experiment, Takes Only Liquids; Officials Prepare to Interfere With Plan.

GOES ON—Inside

Hollywood, Aug. 12 (AP).—Stephen Simkhovitch, robust film writer who has agreed to be frozen solid as subject of a "human icicle" revivification experiment, began dieting Sunday to prepare himself for the test.

He ate soup and drank liquids, while Dr. Ralph S. Willard, research chemist, furthered plans to put him to sleep and then freeze him and keep him at a temperature of 30 degrees below zero.

Doctor Willard said he hoped eventually to show that the freezing death would overcome tuberculosis and even cancer. For six years, he said, he had experimented similarly with guinea pigs, dogs and monkeys, and now was ready for the human test.

Officials Prepare to Impose Ban From Burton Pitts, district attorney, came a statement that "immediate steps will be taken to prevent such an experiment if it is attempted."

Lebrun Appeals For End of Strife

Paris, Aug. 12 (AP)—France was calm but discontented Sunday over government economy and pay cut decrees as the death toll from last week's rioting at Brest and Toulon reached five with the death of a man shot by Brest police.

President Albert Lebrun addressed a "supreme appeal to the nation" to end its political strife. Dedicating a monument to the war dead at Metz, he cried:

"Enough of doubling up of fists, of evil looks, of words of hate.

"That parties should clash violently to regain lost liberties is natural in countries ruled by dictatorships, but where, as in France, the citizen enjoys the most complete liberty under the supreme safeguard of republican laws, what need is there of these agitations which are a source of trouble, instability and economic misery?"

Harrisburg, Aug. 12 (AP).—The governor's office announced today that H. Edgar Barnes, former secretary of revenue, will be appointed justice of the supreme court this afternoon and will take the oath of office immediately.

Barnes will succeed the late Alexander Simpson, Jr., and will serve until January 1. Attorney General Margiotti ruled that a successor for the rest of Simpson's term must be elected in November.

Barnes resigned his revenue post to campaign for the supreme court seeking the position to be vacated by Judge Frazier when he retires in January.

Record Peach Crop For State Forecast

The Pennsylvania peach crop will be almost four times as large as last year, the federal-state crop reporting service forecasts. The harvest is estimated to be 1,650,000 bushels, compared to 442,000 last year and the average crop of 1,550,000 bushels. In many orchards the quality is better than had been anticipated, the service reports.

The apple crop, estimated at 11,264,000 bushels, will be about 2,700,000 bushels larger than last year and 1,900,000 bushels above average. The fruit is reported as sizing well, but outside of commercial areas the quality is reported as poor.

A crop of 399,000 bushels of pears is forecast, about five per cent higher than the 1934 harvest or the average production. Improvement in the commercial grape crop, now reported as of excellent quality, will make the grape harvest of 27,720 tons about 50 per cent larger than last year.

WPA To Stand Pat On Wage Schedule

Washington, Aug. 12 (AP).—Blunt notice that the administration will stand fast on "security" wages despite New York city strike threats was given Sunday by Aubrey Williams, assistant works progress director.

"Congress has set the policy and that's all been determined," he said when asked if adjustments might be made to forestall today's scheduled spread of the walkout in New York.

Williams' statement, reaffirmation of President Roosevelt's stand that those refusing jobs on the security wage level would be cut off the dole, was made to the national coordinating committee of rank and file groups in social work. They had demanded payment of prevailing wages.

Denying assertions that the $19-to-$24 security wage scale would break down the level in private employment, Williams told the group that "government can't lift the wage structure above what private industry can pay."

East Berlin Bank Pays 13% Dividend

Payments totaling 35 per cent have been made to depositors in the past. After the 13 per cent dividend is paid today, the total paid will have been 48 per cent on deposits.

The bank entered receivership April 26, 1934. After the national banking holiday proclaimed March 4, 1933, the bank was operated by a conservator until entering receivership. Clair F. Young, Hanover, is receiver for the institution.

"The United States of America is a Christian nation. Religious zeal led to its discovery. Practically every colony was founded by Christian men seeking for religious liberty. Our great men from Washington down were Christian men and following the advice contained in Washington's farewell address that religion was absolutely essential to our people for education and morality without the sanction of religion could not secure for us that stability as a nation that men were striving for. They fostered it by supporting laws that protected the Sabbath and religious institutions.

"Then, too, the unanimous decision or opinion of the supreme court of the United States declared that this is a Christian nation, citing the evidences for such an opinion in the form of oath that all our public officers from the President down must take. The words at the beginning of wills disposing of one's material possessions, the adjournment of courts, congress, legislatures, and government businesses over the holy Sabbath day, the employment of chaplains in all government deliberative bodies and legislative halls as well as in the army and navy—all these and many other acts and practices in government activities and social circles established beyond controversy that this is a Christian nation.

READY MADE WIFE

BY CORALIE STANTON

Chapter 47 ACCIDENT

Rex Moore came into the little salon. In his grey eyes was a glint of satisfaction.

He ordered food, and a bottle of champagne. With the quick response of the French to all culinary emergencies, it was soon brought. Hot soup and cold chicken.

Gladys took some soup and a glass of wine, and almost immediately afterwards fell asleep on the couch. Rex Moore and Laurie said very little.

"I gave that young cur a sound thrashing," he said. "I don't think he'll forget it."

"How did you come to meet Glad?" she asked.

"I followed you, Laurie. As soon as the car turned the corner, I got out. I couldn't let you go off like that, alone. I saw you go into this hotel. They told me that the office that you had called on Mr. Dallas. I—well, I guessed something was up. So I walked up and down outside, and then came across this poor child."

"Thank God, you were there!" she said aloud.

And then, in an immense revulsion of feeling, she spoke soundlessly to her inmost heart.

"I love him! I love him! He is the finest man in the world—the only man in the world. How can I go on living? How can I?"

Laurie and Gladys came back to London by train and boat.

Rex Moore flew back alone.

A shock awaited him when he reached the Chelsea flat. He found a message to say that Mrs. Steele had been in a motor accident and was seriously injured. They had taken her up from a nursing home to say that Mrs. Steele was asking for him. She wanted to see him very urgently.

He drove immediately to the address, and saw from the face of the woman who received him that Wanda must be very ill indeed.

"There is no hope," the matron said. "She is barely conscious. A spinal injury. If she lived, she would be a cripple."

In silence he stole into the room, and looked down with sad, self-reproachful eyes at the grey face on the pillows.

He thought she was unconscious, and did not speak.

"She is slipping away," the matron whispered. "Say something to her. She wanted so much to see you."

"Wanda!" he said gently. "Wanda, dear. I am here!"

It took a perceptible time, but his voice reached her and brought her back literally for a few seconds from the other side.

She opened her eyes; she tried to move.

"Rex, darling!" It was a thread of a voice, wandering, uncertain. It hardly seemed to come from the woman on the bed.

He tried to stammer out conventional sayings about getting better; but his voice broke.

Then a smile hovered over her face. Her lips moved. He bent down, and that whisper, hovering between two worlds, came to his ears.

"I want you to be happy. I want you to have—to have—"

But it was too much. She was already too far away.

The eager lips dropped apart. The matron motioned him away and bent over the bed.

Wanda Steele, who had saved his life, who had given him back his eyesight, who had loved him with a strong woman's tenacious passion, was no more.

He gave her his last homage and his first true caress, as he bent reverently and kissed her forehead.

Albery had returned to London on the same day as Laurie.

When she was called into his room on the following morning, she found him his usual suave, impassive self. But there was something in his manner that warned her. He spoke smoothly, but she seemed to see the whip in his hand.

"I got your message in Berlin," he said. "I am sorry about your sister. How is she?"

"She is getting on all right, thank you."

"How did you go to Paris?" She was startled, but her instinct was always to tell the truth, and she answered frankly:

"Rex Moore took me by air."

"You had given me your word of honor not to see him again."

"I couldn't help myself. I had to get there as quickly as possible. It was very urgent."

"You did not tell anybody that you were going to Paris. My people here thought you were at home."

"I wired to Mr. Mortimer from Paris. He had asked us to dine with him."

"That's how I found out you were in Paris. Mortimer told me. Laurie, you're not telling me the truth. That's not only unkind, but unwise."

"I am telling you the truth." She felt a furious resentment against him. It was a foretaste of what was to come. She had sold herself to this man with the unreadable Oriental face, and always the whip in his hand. She could not call her soul her own. She was a slave.

"Are you going to get together with Moore every time my back is turned?" he asked in that silky voice that stabbed like a stiletto. "Do you want to call our bargain off?"

"No—not!" she said. What was there behind his eyes that gave his words such a sinister meaning? On the face of it, he was in the right. She had given him her word and broken it. And she could not explain. She felt actually that she would rather die than explain. But their bargain—that was another matter. That meant Rex Moore's career, which was his life.

"I have settled my business," he went on, and now he was the smiling, ardent-eyed lover on the point of achieving his desire. "So there is nothing to wait for. I am going to take a holiday, entirely away from business. I have a place in France, not far from Paris. We will go over and be married there, and then we will tour through Spain for our honeymoon."

"And when I have to come back here, you will stay in some quiet little place and I will come over every week-end. Mortimer is going to work things when he gets back to Australia. I can trust him. He will wangle it so that we can announce that you have divorced Rex Moore down there, where you were married."

"So you see, it's all fixed up. Get ready to leave London in the middle of next week. Don't bother about anything in the way of clothes. You can do your shopping in Paris. I shall have to go over a few days before to arrange about the wedding. Laurie! Laurie! My lovely girl!"

His voice changed to passionate exultation. He took her in his arms. She was caught in the merciless spokes of the wheel of life. She was helpless. She could only submit.

Next week she would be Mark Albery's wife. And life would be over for her.

Wanda Steele was buried in England, according to her wishes, and the cabled confirmation of her nearest relative, a brother in New York.

After the funeral, Rex Moore learned the meaning of those last words that she had breathed.

A member of a firm of solicitors that had been acting for her, who, besides himself, her maid, and her chauffeur, were the only mourners, drove him back from the little country churchyard of the village that her family had originally come from, and asked him to come into his office.

Here he revealed the fact that Mrs. Steele had made a fresh will the very day before her accident, in which she had left him nearly the whole of her property in California, and securities that would bring him in a very comfortable income.

Rex was overwhelmed. His first thought was that he would be independent of Mark Albery. He felt an inexpressible gratitude to the dead woman who had demonstrated her love for him beyond the grave.

Everything was in perfect order, the lawyer assured him. He had exchanged cables with Mrs. Steele's men of business in California and with her brother. There could be no question about the validity of the will.

Rex Moore went out dazed, into the hot July afternoon. He felt humble; so unworthy of the dead woman's great love.

He walked swiftly through the streets; not only a free, but a rich man.

The next day an even greater blessing was bestowed on Rex Moore. On paying a visit to the famous eye specialist, he was told by the great man:

"I can find no more trace of the trouble, Mr. Moore. I am happy to pronounce you completely cured." (Copyright, 1935, Coralie Stanton)

Gettysburg practically "sewed up" the second half championship of the Adams county league by downing Arendtsville at Arendtsville, Saturday afternoon, 6-4. Fairfield and Bendersville received severe jolts, Cashtown upsetting Fairfield, 5-2, while Midway blanked Bendersville, 3-0.

The Sadlermen were forced to come from behind again to win, Arendtsville pounding Bohn for an early, 4-1 lead.

Arendtsville tabbed a pair of runs in the second on Guy Raff's double, a single by W. Raff, and an error and a single by Al Wierman.

Guy Raff's long home run to right field with Kane on board produced another pair of tallies for the apple pickers in the third.

Two errors and Hankey's single gave the locals a run in the third.

Art Slaybaugh twirled winning ball for Arendtsville until the sixth when Gettysburg put on a four-run rally to drive him from the box.

Hankey and Ulrich singled. I. Kitzmiller grounded out, but Miller saved on an error, Hankey scoring.

Kennel reached first on Wierman's throw to the plate was too late to catch Ulrich. Flynn fanned but C. Kitzmiller and Roddy followed with singles to produce two more tallies.

The final Gettysburg run came in authorized its collection by Tax Collector George H. Bitner. The new duplicate lists estimated receipts $868.13 in excess of the estimated receipts of the 1934-35 duplicate.

McSherrystown Nine Defeats Gettysburg, Maust and Smith Hurling Duel.

Gettysburg dropped a snappily played game to McSherrystown at McSherrystown, Sunday afternoon, 4-3.

Johnny Maust and C. Smith hooked up in a pitching duel and both were the victims of some slovenly fielding.

Three successive errors gave McSherrystown two runs in the fourth. J. Noel rapped a home run over the right field fence for another enemy run in the sixth. The winning run was produced in the eighth on G. Keffer's double and Groff's single.

Gettysburg scored all of its runs in the seventh. E. Keffer's wild throw saved Miller. Kennel singled. Flynn sacrificed. C. Smith to J. Noel. C. Kitzmiller singled both runners home and raced to second when the ball went through Staub's legs in center field. Kitzmiller was run down on Roddy's grounder. Roddy stole second and raced home when Groff's throw went into deep center field.

Read the Bible With Us Daily

After these things the word of the Lord came unto Abram in a vision, saying, Fear not, Abram: I am thy shield, and they exceeding great reward.

And Abram said, Lord God, what wilt thou give me, seeing I go childless, and the steward of my house is this Eliezer of Damascus?

And Abram said, Behold, to me thou hast given no seed: and, lo, one born in my house is mine heir. And, behold, the word of the Lord came unto him, saying, This shall not be thine heir; but he that shall come fourth out of thine own bowels shall be thine heir.

And he brought him forth abroad, and said, Look now toward heaven, and tell the stars, if thou be able to number them: and he said unto him, So shall thy seed be.

And he believed in the Lord; and he counted it to him for righteousness.

And he said unto him, I am the Lord that brought thee out of Ur of the Chaldees, to give thee this land to inherit it.

And he said, Lord God, whereby shall I know that I shall inherit it?

And he said unto him, Take me a heifer of three years old, and a she goat of three years old, and a ram of three years old, and a turtle dove, and a young pigeon.

And he took unto him all these, and divided them in the midst, and laid each piece one against another: but the birds divided he not.

And when the fowls came down upon the carcases, Abram drove them away.

Genesis 15:1-11.

Wednesday, the 19th of August next. Several ministers from a distance are expected to preach on that occasion, in the English language. The public are respectfully invited to attend the ceremonies.

The Editor of the "Carlisle Volunteer" (Wm. B. Underwood) in an article relative to the election in his last paper, has the following base allusion to our county: "In the borough of Gettysburg, in the county of Adams—a county celebrated for Toryism during the Revolutionary war." Such language only deserves that contempt which its author has often richly earned.

Died.—On Monday last, in Oxford, Adams county, Mrs. Anna Margaret Hersh, wife of John Hersh, Sr., in the 81st year of her age.

SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO
The Executive Committee of the "Lincoln Club" are Dr. Charles Horner, F. B. Pickling, Wm. B. McClellan, Esq., James M. Rouzer and John Rupp; the treasurer, Charles Boyer.

The Census.—The population of Gettysburg is 2,390—being an increase of 210 since 1850. In Gettysburg the deaths were 50, 1 large common school, with 9 teachers and 533 scholars; 1 lecturer with 4 professors, 2 tutors, 1 lecturer, and 160 students; 1 theological seminary with 3 professors and 27 students; 8 churches.

The population of Pennsylvania is about 3,100,000.

We mentioned last week that Mr. Long, of Mountpleasant township had no insurance on his barn which was destroyed by lightning. We learn since that he was insured for $666, in the Adams County Mutual fire insurance company. The company has funds sufficient to pay it without an assessment.

Married.—In Chambersburg on the 19th ult., by the Rev. Samuel Phillips, Abner D. Kuhn to Miss Rebecca Stover, both of Cashtown.

The People's County Convention.—The People's County convention in pursuance of call met in the Court House in Gettysburg on Monday, August 6th, 1860, and organized by calling Samuel Durborow, Esq., to the chair, and appointing Frank Hersh and A. J. Cover, secretaries.

Nominations for various offices were made as follows:

J. Finley Bailey was declared the nominee for assembly.
Charles X. Martin was declared the nominee for register and recorder.

John M. Wolf was declared the nominee for clerk of the courts.

The names of David A. Buchler, Samuel Durborow and Frank Hersh were suggested as conferees.

After a long and severe spell of drought we have been visited by fine rains which will have a most beneficial effect upon the vegetation which has not been injured beyond recovery. It has also cooled the air, which is, beyond a doubt very agreeable, as for more than a week, the mercury was in the 90's, and of course it was rather "hot for comfort."

Died.—On Wednesday last, Kate Matthews McConaughy, infant daughter of David and Lena McConaughy, aged nearly 10 months. On the 5th, Buckley D., son of R. D. Armor, of this place, aged 1 year and 20 days.

THOUGHT ON A HOT DAY

The blazing sun no pity showed
To caste or creed along the road.
O'er rich and poor and young and old
The waves of stifling heat were rolled.

One with the farmer at the plough
I saw the great man wipe his brow.
The sun flamed down upon poor and rich.
Indifferent as to which was which.

The countless things which men divide,
On such a day were cast aside.
Nor wealth, nor fame, nor urgent pleas
Could win the blessing of a breeze.

So silly seem our petty traits
And foolish loves and bitter hates,
Pomp, pride and arrogant display,
Dividing men on such a day!

Today's Talk

By George Matthew Adams

EGOTISM

MANY of us look upon egotism as something derogatory, yet it is perhaps one of the essential things to have in order to succeed and to achieve.

Not that blind, selfish and overbearing egotism that makes people avoid you, and often abhor you, but that egotism that becomes a force behind your faith and which spurs you to do things that look impossible and for which you often sacrifice immediate applause and commendation. Where there is character there is always to be found a certain egotism.

Call it what you will, egotism, when not made an end in the working out of a plan or purpose, becomes tainted with something of the sublime. When it becomes a motivating force, it asserts the man or woman. It puts plausible pride into a person's heart and gives effectiveness to effort.

Those who so handle their egotism, are sure to be leaders and sure to have followers who trust and believe in them. Genuine egotism is always wrapped in humility. It offers no boast. It expects no hand-clapping. It seeks only just recognition where it is able to bring things to pass for the benefit of others and the world.

Those who are afraid of this effective force belie their own opinions and become shrinking borrowers. Egotism takes courage.

My college motto was "Fit via vi"—the way is made by force. We used to translate this Latin motto as "Kick—and get through!" People who stand still and have to depend upon someone else to come around and give them a kick, lack the grand quality of egotism.

We are prone to object to people who appear to have egotism in their makeup. Let us admire and applaud such. They are the doers and inspirers—that is, unless they let their egotism master them. Then they become mere bores.

I am indebted to my friend Robert Updegraff, for the idea behind this talk, as I am for many ideas from time to time. It's good to have friends.

Simple Sophistication Of Marian Martin Design Appeals To Juniors

You must remember your own "between ages" (from 8 to 16) when you did wish that mother would stop dressing you in such a babyish fashion! It was a dress like Marian Martin's pattern 9498 your heart craved—one with a smooth shoulder yoke and a big decorative button in front!

One that might have a brief jerky flared sleeve—or puff just as your own fancy dictates, and one that has real grown-up style features like bodice fullness and a yoke-panel that releases its pleats at just the right time. Adorable made of dimity, voile or shantung. Complete, diagrammed Marian Martin sew chart included.

Ban Profiteering On the Olympics

Berlin (AP).—The Olympics are no field for profiteers, the Nazi price commissioner, Karl Goerdeler, has decreed. He strictly forbade the raising of prices during 1936, as this "would dishonor the reich's standing abroad."

Goerdeler's ordinance involves three "Olympic districts"—Bavaria, where the winter games are to be held, Berlin, for the athletic and rowing contests in summer, and

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

New York—I've been arguing the relative merits of Broadway plays and getting nowhere with it, but then nobody ever change's one's mind over religion, politics, or the theater. You like a play or you don't. It lifts you up, or it leaves you sitting there.

But the question wasn't "What's the best play in town?" We were arguing about scenes. There are half a dozen scenes in current play is so fine that I don't see how one could ever forget the plays, or worse, the people who acted in them.

A case in point is that thrilling episode at the end of Act II in "Casting Zero." Osgood Perkins is bawling into a loudspeaker. From the ether comes the drone of a motor as a plane circles helplessly in the dense fog. The pilot is frantically pleading for instructions by radio. But his receiving set is dead, and so Perkins and his crew can do nothing but stand aghast until the inevitable crash comes.

There's a heart-breaker in "The Old Maid," too. It comes at the very end of Act III, and Judith Anderson is alone on the stage with the illegitimate daughter of "The Old Maid," who is, in the play, Miss Anderson's cousin. The child doesn't know this, and so always she has hatefully referred to her own mother as "that old maid."

The scene is one of high courage and brave resolve. It offers a gesture so noble that people in the audience have been known to sob aloud. All Miss Anderson does is tell the girl, in effect: "Once she could have married a man who loved her very much. He would have given her everything a woman wants most, but she sent him away because she was unwilling to be separated from you. That's why she's an old maid."

I'm quoting these lines from memory, but the gist is correct. It's the punch scene of the play that was good enough to win this year's Pulitzer award.

As for "The Children's Hour," one hesitates to name any scene as THE scene of this most unusual play. It has several which wound you so severely that you just sit there and sort of hold your breath and wonder what on earth will happen next. There's the scene when Florence McGee (the little brat) first touches the forbidden theme with a lie. There's another when Katherine Emery and Ann Rever struggle so frantically and so futilely against the dark circumstances which bring them to ruin. There's another at the very end of the play when Miss Emery and Katherine Emmet are together, when the lie has been discovered after it is too late to do anything about it.

It's been off the boards for months now but no one who saw it has forgotten the scene in "Point Valaine" when Alfred Lunt, as the Russian waiter, realizes that he has lost Lynn Fontanne. But the real tragedy of it was when he discovered he had never had her to lose.

Too, there's the face-washing scene in "Tobacco Road," the scene in "The Barrets of Wimpole Street" when the father finds that his daughter has gone; the scene between Katherine Cornell and Burgess Meredith in "Flowers of the Forest," and the scene in "Times Have Changed" between Elena Miramova and the imbecile husband. All these are high moments in a season not soon to be forgotten.

Census Places Value of Farms

Latest information from the 1935 census indicates that Pennsylvania has 191,284 farms covering an area of 15,855,429 acres, with the land and buildings valued at $861,849,905.

In comparison with 1930, these recent figures show an increase of eleven per cent in number of farms, an increase of 3 1/2 per cent in total acreage, and a decrease of 28 per cent in farm value.

Every district in Pennsylvania gained in number of farms with the greatest increase in the western half of the state. The acreage gain was also greatest in the western counties. The northeastern district showed a slight decrease in farm acreage in spite of an increase in farms.

The reduction in farm real estate value was remarkably uniform throughout the state. The decline, however, was slightly greater in the southwestern district, and least in the southeastern. The depreciation in farm value was far less in Pennsylvania than in the best farming states of the mid-west.

The census shows many interesting trends in farming throughout the United States. The greatest percentage increase in number of farms was in New England but the greatest expansion of land in farms was in the southern and Rocky mountain states. Furthermore, the greatest decrease in the value of farm land and buildings was in the mid-west.

New Books

By JOHN SELBY

For some weeks, the publishers of "Paths of Glory" (Viking) have been giving Humphrey Cobbs' novel what the publicity fraternity calls a "build-up."

A large number of more or less qualified judges have read the book, with unanimous praises thereafter. Much advertising attends its publication; if it is not the best seller, it will be because the public is definitely tired of war books.

It is to be hoped the public is not too weary of blood and thunder to like "Paths of Glory." The first part is perhaps a little slow to take off. It describes the 181st French regiment coming exhausted out of the trenches, and the reason why it is sent directly back into them. The reason is that a blunder has led headquarters to announce that the commander has been taken, and the commander has asked General Assolant to make the announcement good, rather than tell the truth.

Assolant sees great honor for himself if he succeeds. The 181st, being fine soldiers, take the brunt of the attack. The attack fails, and at that point Mr. Cobbs' book leaves off being "good" and in the opinion of many, becomes "great." Assolant's frustrated rage, his determination to make the 181st the scapegoat, his insane demand that each company commander choose one of his men for a court-martial sentence to return a death sentence—these are shattering pages.

And the three chosen men, as they realize little by little their fate, build one of the finest scenes in recent fiction. Mr. Cobbs' carefully restrained prose is responsible for most of the effect.

"Molder" by Winifred Duke (Little, Brown): Miss Duke devotes a book to the task of explaining why Mr. Bruce murdered Mrs. Bruce, and what the act did to him; "not a mystery."

"Beauty's Daughter," by Kathleen Norris (Doubleday, Doran): Mrs. Norris writes her 50-umpph novel, mostly about love, and holding love, "Kneel to the Rising Sun," by Erskine Caldwell (Viking): one of the leading exploiters of the lowly in fiction writes a group of short stories, some very fine; the last story is being dramatized.

Fantasy "The Fruit Stoners," by Algernon Blackwood (Dutton): amusing fantasy about a girl and the curious creatures carved from fruit stones; like "Alice in Wonderland," it is for the sensitive of any age.

"Lives of a Woman," by Baroness von Hutten (Dutton): the rich life of Jennie Birdwell, who had five sets of children by four husbands and communicated the wisdom she accumulated to them.

"An Eastern Odyssey," by Georges de Fevre (Little, Brown): the story of a heartbreaking trek from Beirut to Peking by motor, through dust storms, over snow, across the Himalayas, through bandits' fire; one of the best travel adventure books of the season.

"A History of Europe," by H. A. L. Fisher (Houghton Mifflin): the first installment of a three volume work written with beautiful clarity

PLANE LANDS SAFELY
IN AUTO PARKING LOT

New York, Aug. 12 (AP)—A Thrush monoplane made a forced landing at Coney Island Sunday in so small a space that it will have to be dismantled for removal.

Thousands of bathers scattered as the ship, an over-the-city excursion plane, circled Manhattan beach before it slid safely to earth, fitting snugly into a chink in a block of 2,000 parked automobiles. It had engine trouble.

The pilot and six passengers—two of them children—stepped out unhurt. The plane was not damaged.

SPRING BLOOMS

Forget-Me-Nots, English Daisies Thrive If Planted In Cold Frames.

By GISELA GRIMM

(In the N. Y. Herald Tribune)

It is probable that no other flower has so endeared itself to the gardener's heart as the pansy. An edging of pansies in many colors is always gay, and the brilliancy and arrangement of the colors on their flower faces are each day a new delight.

Much interest and beauty may be added to a border planting of bulbs and other spring flowers by carpeting the soil about them with pansies, either in mixed or in separate colors to carry out a definite scheme.

A carpet of yellow pansies will brighten a planting of dull or dark colored tulips, such as Louis XIV, or Bronze Queen. Deep purple pansies might be chosen to plant with yellow tulips or some clear pink tulip like Clara Butt. Forget-me-nots and English daisies (Bellis perennis), with gay white, pink, rose and red buttons on six-inch stems, may be charmingly used in the same way as edgings or carpets for spring borders.

Cold Frame Found Helpful

The home gardener may, with a little care, raise these flowers from seed, and thus have quantities of them for his spring garden at little cost. It is advisable to purchase the very best seeds obtainable, although it may seem expensive, for the best strains are usually shy seed bearers. Seed should be sown in August so that the plants will become large enough to survive the winter and come into bloom early in the spring.

A cold frame is helpful, if not almost essential, to the amateur in raising these plants from seed. A cold frame affords protection against hot sun and heavy rains.

which will beat the unprotected seedlings to the ground.

The soil for seed sowing should be light and pulverized to a depth of six inches. After it has been carefully leveled and firmed, the seed should be sown in drills two to four inches apart and lightly covered with soil. Care should be taken not to sow the seed too thickly, for this will necessitate thinning and waste of plants. After sowing, the soil should be firmed and watered with fine mist-like spray which will not wash the seed from the soil. It is important not to permit the soil to dry out at any time until the seeds have germinated.

Darkness Speeds Germination

It is helpful to cover the surface of the soil with newspaper or burlap to prevent it from drying and baking. This will also hasten germination, for seeds germinate best in the dark. A lath shade should also be used over the top of the frame for further protection.

It is important to watch the seed bed closely and to remove the burlap just as soon as the first seedlings begin to come through the ground. When the seedlings are in the early stages of growth careful attention should be given to watering. As pansies, forget-me-nots and English daisies are cool-weather plants, it is advisable to keep the lath shade on the plants during the heat of the day. It is important, however, that the shades be propped up to admit plenty of light and air.

As soon as the seedlings have several leaves and before they be-

Delirious, Man Found Swimming 160 Miles at Sea Off Boston

Rescued by Fisherman and Flown Ashore in Coast Guard Plane, He Says He Jumped Overboard "Because President Roosevelt Dared Me To."

Boston, Aug. 12 (AP)—Delirious, a man was found swimming 160 miles at sea off Boston Sunday. Pulled from the waves by the crew of a fishing boat, he was transferred to a Coast Guard plane and flown to this city where he was taken to a hospital.

From his first words, mumbled and incoherent, physicians gathered that he had jumped overboard from the fishing vessel Notre Dame, "because President Roosevelt and J. Edgar Hoover dared me to."

Later, recovering somewhat from exhaustion, hunger and derangement, the man said he was Walter Robillard, of Boston.

He was taken from the water by the crew of the Boston fishing trawler, Ripple, whose master, Capt. Samuel Sorenson, said he had to lock him in the mate's quarters because of his violence.

The crew of the rescue plane said they had placed him in their ship, bobbing up and down in rough water, only with the greatest difficulty, but that once aboard the plane he quieted down.

How the man came to be so far at sea or how long he had been swimming could not be learned by the crews of the ship or plane.

The Coast Guard later reported it had confirmed his story he had leaped overboard, but had not been able to learn why. On the Notre Dame he was known to the crew as "Frenchie."

Giving details of the rescue, Captain Sorenson said:

Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Cleveland, Mrs. Grant Mason, Mr. and Mrs. O. 22,295 Increase in Relief Rolls

Pennsylvania's relief rolls increased in the week ending August 3 for the first time since the peak was reached on April 13.

The increase, 22,295, which made the total 1,544,538, was larger than any of the sixteen weekly decreases. Nearly 200,000 dropped from the relief rolls in the sixteen weeks. The highest weekly decrease was 14,000.

The State Emergency Relief board attributed the increase to the number of applicants for direct relief filed by persons who have been dropped from the work relief rolls. The total number of applications for the week was 23,123, the largest this year. The board said it "may be attributed primarily to the needy conditions of former work relief families not yet able to obtain jobs under the WPA program."

Trains for Duties As Gopher Coach

Minneapolis (AP)—Sig Harris, the little man who never grows old, member of the University of Minnesota coaching staff since 1905, has gone to the north woods to get in condition for those tough Gophers.

With a group of friends Sig has purchased part of the Henry Clay Pierce estate near Superior, Wisconsin, the tract where Calvin Coolidge spent his vacation in 1928.

Famed for its trout streams, its deer and other game, the estate will provide room enough for even so energetic a person as Harris to stretch his legs.

Harris played quarterback for
